

THE EVENING BULLETIN

FRIDAY, MAY 15, 1885.

There are still no resignations, but the changes go steadily on.

England will spend $5,000,000 for railways and military roads for the defense of India.

The Louisville Commercial has been sold to Mr. Zach Phelps, a young lawyer of that city.

This contest over the Kentucky District Attorneyship has narrowed down to Judge Wickliffe and Col. Fleming.

John Barbee, Jr., son of Hon. John Barbee, of Louisville, is an applicant for Collectorship of Customs at Sitka, Alaska.

It is rumored that James G. Blaine and Senator John Sherman have formed a political alliance, Sherman to be proposed for President in '88.

A Cincinnati Judge has given notice to the stockholders of the Cincinnati News-Journal that they are responsible for $100,000 worth of debts.

It is generally understood that Governor Rife will call an extra session of the Tennessee Legislature for appointment of that body, embracing in the call the registration, pleuro-pneumonia and appropriation bills.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the New Bureau Exposition the resignation of Director General Burke was tendered and accepted. A pressure of private business was given at the cause of Major Burke's action. His resignation takes effect May 20.

This rumor has been denied that there has been a break between Senator Blackburn and the President, growing out of the failure to appoint Senator Blackburn's brother to the office for which he had been denied. The report is denied on the authority of Mr. Blackburn.

The box of valuables found in the treasury the other day, and supposed to have been the property of President Monroe, are now said to have been a present to General Jackson from the Rey of Morocco. Now that this question has been decided the work of turning the rasals out may be resumed.

This riot that is telegraphed from Washington daily about the operations of the administration is simply wonderful. For an example the papers gravely tell of a man, the other day, making terms upon which he would accept an important appointment under Mr. Secretary Manning. The probabilities are that Mr. Manning would resist a proposition for conditions on which an appointment was to be made as promptly if it bore the appearance of a bribe as it did the appearance of an appointment. Mr. Manning isn't the kind of man that bargains in official places.

One More Night.

Probably the largest crowd ever seen in the opera house gathered last night to hear Rev. George C. Needham, the Irish evangelist. Every chair in the building was taken, the stage was packed, and probably a hundred and fifty stood in the entire service, while many turned away for want of room. Certainly no religious meetings for years past have aroused as much interest in Mayville and it is to be regretted that Mr. Needham cannot remain longer with us. He would like to stay, but he is almost broken down, having been engaged in evangelistic work constantly for nearly nine months. He has another reason also. His family is in Philadelphia and the health of his delicate boy demands that he should be removed from the city at once, so he is compelled to return to his home at Manchester by the sea, in Massachusetts, where the family will spend the summer.

Rev. Needham has won the hearts of our people and there is a universal desire that he shall return to our city in the fall when he is fresh and strong and can remain longer with us. His sermon last night to the young men was very tender and powerful and the crowd of young men who heard it were deeply moved as shown by the large number who stood for prayer in the after meeting at the Methodist Church. This afternoon Mr. Needham will lecture at the Presbyterian Church from 3 to 4 p. m., on "Peculiar People." To-night he will preach his last sermon at the opera house. He is announced for three sermons in Louisville on Sunday, when he will make an appeal for the "Home of the Friendless" in that city. Next week he will go to his home in Massachusetts for the summer.

HAD TO WED OR DIE.

A Completed Marriage Where Pivots Persuade the Tawling Groom.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., May 15.—William N. Jones, of Taylorville, has brought suit against his wife, to whom he has been married but a day. His long ago William Gaston brother of the young lady now married to Jones, was apprised by his mother of the necessity of finding a husband to help up his sister's honor. Young Gaston took into his confidence Alexander Jones, a lawyer young farmer and they found Mr. Jones, and draw their weapons from under the huggy seat they covered Jones with two self-cooking revolvers. This persuaded him to take the matter into the buggy, was driven to the house of Miss Gaston, and, as he alleges, was kept bound all night, when his wife and brother were both ready. He refused at first to answer the momentous questions as to whether he would love and cherish his, but the reproduction of the weapons of war brought him to his senses, and the couple were duly pronounced husband and wife.

Young Gaston then hitched up his team, and giving the groom and bride seats of honor, drove them to the residence of the groom's mother, where as deposited there and where the bride still remains indulging upon the rights and privileges of a daughter-in-law. Allegedly in substance, Mr. Jones seeks to have the whole affair annulled before matters grow any worse.

THE RAQ-DALE TRAGEDY.

Reburial of the Sheriff—Citizens After the Burial.

BONHAM, Tex., May 15.—The remains of Sheriff Ragdale, who was killed by desperadoes, were taken to Savoy by special train and buried with Masonic honors. Five hundred citizens of Bonham accompanied the remains. Buchanan, whom Ragdale commissioned as his deputy just before the fight occurred, is also dead from the effects of two fatal wounds. There were only two desperadoes in the house at the time the sheriff died. The two desperadoes, Ed and Sam. The balance of the gang escaped before the posse arrived. Ed Dyer is badly wounded and lies in jail here.

After Ragdale had received the bullet in his head, just behind the ear, he raised his Winchester with great difficulty and shot Ed in the stomach. Sam Dyer made his escape. A citizen's posse have stationed pickets along the Indian territory line to kill the desperadoes who have fled to that territory. The county commissioners of Fannin county offer $1,000 reward for his arrest. The posse is likely to overtake Sam at any hour in company with other members of his gang who escaped, when a bloody battle may follow, as Sam told Ed just before he fled the latter waiting in his room, that he would overtake the gang and give the citizens battle, and that he would kill as many as he could and then shoot himself.

THE PRELLER TRAGEDY.

THE FRIENDS OF MAXWELL'S VICTIM
IN EUROPE HEARD FROM.

A Letter Received From the Murderer
Man's Employer—Cold and Heartless.
Disposition of Effects—The New Witness—No More Poison.

St. Louis, May 15.—A letter with an English postmark was laid upon Chief Harrison's desk, and before the seal had been broken it was known that at last something definite had come from England, with reference to C. Arthur Preller, murdered in the Southern hotel, April 5. Nothing has been heard from his relatives or employers, and the circumstance was used as a base to build up a fanciful theory that Preller had failed and put up a job with Maxwell to place a purchased cadaver in a trunk and let it pass for Preller that he might escape. The letter was opened. It read as follows: "BRADFORD YOUNG, April 30.—Lawrence Harrison, Esq.: Dear Sir—I thank you for yours of the 15th inst., and beg to say that Mr. Ennius Preller and myself are sending to Mr. Frank Schlesinger, of Broome street, New York, a power of attorney by which he will be enabled to receive from you all the property of the late Mr. C. Arthur Preller left in St. Louis or any other city in the United States. May I beg you to kindly assist him as much as possible in the matter. The trunk of my friend contained a large quantity of samples of cloth and fancy patterns which are very valuable to me. These and various pocket-books with, I think, he found in the big trunks marked C. A. P. in white letters. There should also be several hand-bags containing my patterns, and ever and above these things there must be several trunks of good quality which contained the valuable clothes of my friend with a large collection of books and maps. Mr. Preller is writing Mr. Frank Schlesinger and is giving him an address to which to send all the stuff. Possibly he may send one portion to Mr. Preller in London and the other here to me in Bradford. I sincerely thank you for all your great exertions in the real tragedy and sincerely trust that you may be successful in bringing the wicked murderer to justice. Perhaps you will kindly inform me of any further news. Believe me, yours faithfully,

"J. H. DIXON."

A letter similar to the one received by Chief Harrison was received by the managers of the Southern hotel, and turned over to the public administrator. Both letters are exceedingly cold and business-like, there being scarcely any sympathy expressed in them. The trunks will not be turned over to Mr. Schlesinger immediately, but will be held in the hope that something in them may be of use in the trial of the case. One of Preller's trunks was held by the customs officials at Fort Huron for duty, but nothing has been heard from it since a few days after the discovery of the corpse in the trunk. It is not known what it contained.

Dr. Charles Lovick, the chemist, called on Coroner Nield, and, being asked if he had found anything new in the shape of poison in Preller's stomach, said that he had not, though he had applied a number of tests. He is not done with it yet, however, and will conduct a number of other experiments. Ever since the fact was made known that Maxwell had gone to Auckland the chief has been worried by letters from parties anxious to go after him and fetch him back. V. B. Harris, an attendant at the St. Joseph insane asylum, is the latest applicant. He would like to go, he says, for the benefit of his health, and asks to be paid nothing but his expenses.

The New Witness.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Representative Glover, of St. Louis, started homeward by way of New York. Before he went he made something of an investigation regarding the new witness in the Maxwell case. Mr. Glover says he learns that Mr. Buford is the president of a large manufacturing establishment at Rock Island, and is a man of undoubted veracity. Mr. Buford was in the city, and in conversation with Commissioner Black stated that on the evening Preller is supposed to have been murdered he occupies a room with another gentleman directly opposite room 144 in the Southern hotel; that late in the evening his friend and himself were startled at hearing that which Mr. Buford describes as "horrible and inexplicable noises" in room 144; that they listened attentively for some minutes, and became convinced that somebody in the hotel were undergoing the agonies of death; that they were about to make investigation when the sound suddenly ceased, and after commenting on the strange noises the two gentlemen directly permitted the matter to pass from their minds. If Gen. Black remembers the conversation correctly, Mr. Buford said these sounds occurred late in the evening, which would bear out the theory Mr. Glover has that Maxwell's effort to choke Preller to death failed, and that when Preller returned to his room he was strangled by Maxwell. Mr. Glover says it may be necessary to prove by circumstantial evidence that a murder was committed in room 144 of the Southern hotel, in order to disprove any attempt that might be made to show that the body found was only a subject for dissection. If this line of defense should be adopted, Mr. Buford's testimony would become of great value to the prosecution.

COAL MINE HORROR.

Four Men and a Boy Meet a Terrible Death in a Colliery.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., May 15.—A cave-in occurred at North Ashland colliery, by which three miners and a driver were killed and another fatally injured. The colliery is owned by the Philadelphia and Reading coal and iron company. At 10 o'clock the water from above broke through, washing out the pillars and engulfing the men working in No. 45 breast, catching a driver boy just starting from the fall with two mule trips of cars. John Heald, father of the boy, heard the noise of the rushing water. Leaping on the foremost mule, just then passing, he attempted to reach a place of safety. The falling coal, however, caught him and crushed him and the mules to the ground. The victims are Charles Dougherty, James Ennis and Michael McKernan, miners, and Martin Heald, driver. Miller, outright, and John Heald, both legs broken, ribs crushed and shoulder broken. The latter was taken out within an hour by the rescuing party, but he cannot survive his injuries. The accident was caused by rubbing the pillars from the gawgway, thus weakening the walls.
